Be kind to your mind.

Don't Judge; A math's teacher in a class of 6-year-olds asked a boy named Jack, "Jack, if I give you two mangos and another two mangos, how many mangoes will you have? He answered, "Five mangoes". She was surprised by his reply, but she tried again. This time she uses her fingers to make him count with her, he again answered "Five mangoes". This time she gets really annoyed by his answer, but she controlled her anger and remembered that his Mum once told her that he likes strawberries, so she tried this. "Ok Jack, If I give you two strawberries and another two, how many strawberries do you have?" and this time Jack said, "Four strawberries". She felt relieved that he is back on track. So, again she asked him, if I give you two mangoes and another two how many will you have, Jack again replied five? How can you have five mangoes if I give you four? "Teacher, because I have one mango in my bag". The teacher calms down and regrets her anger.

Be Kind

Moral of the Story:

Two sides to every story. Never judge others. We should not decide for others without knowing their point of view. We make the decision based on what is the obvious answer and didn't try to know the actual truth.
